

The 2015 TALE conference invites you to support a local organization: The Huntsville Area Literacy Council.

The Huntsville Area Literacy Council is a non-profit coalition that organizes resources to benefit the local community. Programs of the Huntsville Area Literacy Council include an afternoon tutorial program at the Huntsville Public Library and a service project celebrating El Día de los Niños (Children's Day) that gives books to young readers in order to encourage family literacy and love of reading.

You can support the Huntsville Area Literacy Council Children's Day project by donating online right now! All funds donated go to support the HALC's Children's Day event. You can also bring children's books to donate (especially bilingual books) to the conference.
